'100 Years of Gift Giving' exhibition debuts at Kemerer Museum of Decorative Arts

Children list them, parents hide them, lovers search for them and faraway friends mail them. Christmas presents, with their festive paper and bows, have been part of Christmas celebrations throughout the decades. The "100 Years of Gift Giving" exhibit at the Kemerer Museum of Decorative Arts, 427 N. New St., will highlight the elements of gifting: concepting, shopping, making, wrapping and expressing gratitude. Special items on loan from the Lehigh Archives, Duke University Special Collections and the artifact collection of Historic Bethlehem Museums & Sites will connect gifting practices of the past to those in the present, with a focus on traditions connected with Bethlehem, "The Christmas City." Admission to the "100 Years of Gift Giving" exhibition is included with a Pass Into History admission ticket available at HistoricBethlehem.org, at the Historic Bethlehem Visitor Center, 505 Main St., or by calling 1-800-360-TOUR.

Peek at dollhouse treasures in the Merry Christmas Moritz: Dollhouse Gallery

The Kemerer Museum of Decorative Arts will also serve as the setting for a display of dollhouse treasures from one of the country's premier dollhouse collections, the Elizabeth Johnston Prime Dollhouse collection. This Christmas-themed exhibit will highlight the work of German-based dollhouse manufacturer Moritz Gottschalk. Gottschalk's company was one of the leading mass-market dollhouse manufacturers in the 1860s. Admission to the Merry Christmas Moritz: Dollhouse Gallery exhibit is included with a Pass Into History admission.

'All Dolled Up: Polly and Her Sisters' showcases history of German doll making

The Moravian Museum of Bethlehem, 66 W. Church St., will host a temporary winter exhibition, "All Dolled Up: Polly and Her Sisters," focusing on the history and traditions associated with German doll making. Dolls from the Moravian Museum collection - along with doll furniture, clothing and interpretive displays - will give visitors a view into the German toy companies that produced some of the most highly regarded, sought-after dolls. Admission to this special exhibition is included with a Pass Into History admission.

Trees of Many Colors multi-site display to feature bevy of decorated Christmas trees

From the German word meaning "to decorate" or "to embellish," the Holiday Putz Trail displays miniature replicas of the Nativity scene at the Moravian Museum of Bethlehem Gemeinhaus, Single Sisters' House, 1810 Goundie House, and Central Moravian Church, a new addition to the 2015 Holiday Putz Trail. This Moravian Christmas custom features ornate figurines, animals and building scenes to tell the Nativity story. Admission to the Holiday Putz Trail is included with a Pass Into History admission.
